Monkeys in India.

In India, where the monkeys live among men, and are the playmates of their children, the Hindoos have grown so fond of them that the four-handed folk are despised in their simple household life. In the early morning, when the incessant goes out to yoke his plow, and the crow wakes up, and the dog stretches himself and shakes of the dust in which he has slept all night, the old monkey creeps down from the peepul-tree, only half awake, and yawns and looks about him, puts a straw in his mouth, and scratches himself contentatively.

Then one by one the whole family comes slipping down the tree trunk, and all yawn and look about and scratch. As they are sleepy and peaceful, and the youngsters get cuffed for nothing, and begin to think life dull. Yet the millet has to be performed, and whether they like it or not, the young ones are firmly pulled up one by one to their mother to undergo the process. The one, though regularly repeated every morning, loses nothing of its delightful utility, and the monkey brats never tire of the joke of "taking in mamma."

At the morning wash, her self not so much as the others, she nowise neglects her long ago, and treat each ludicrous exhibition of suffering with profoundest concern, and as she dismisses one "cleaned" youngster with a cuff, stretches out her hand for the next one's tail or leg, the most business-like and serious manner possible. The youngsters know their turns quite well, and as each one is the moment arriving it throws itself into the mesh, if overburdened with apprehension, the others meanwhile finding their laughter at the capricious way and so is doing it, and the instant the maternal paw is extended to grasp its tail, the subject of the next experiment utters a dolorous wail, and throwing itself forward in the dust, allows itself to be dragged along a limp and helpless mass, winking all the time, no doubt, at his brothers and sisters, at the way imposing on the old lady.

But the old lady will stand no nonsense, and turning the child right side up, proceeds to put it to rights; takes the hind legs and tail and knots out the belly; pokes its fingers into its ears, and scratches at each of its toes, the inexpressible at all the time wearing on its face an eternal expression of hopeless and incurable grief. Those who have been already a look on with delight at the demeaning farce, while those who are sitting wear a becoming aspect enormous gravity. The old lady, however, has her joke with her, and every youngster because she lots get so noble as her offspring, she generally, to her credit be it said, manages to give each of them a on the ears before it is out of reach. Her father, meanwhile, sits gravely with back to all these domestic matters, waiting for breakfast.

The monkeys by this time have come over to the preparations for food, and solemnly, household by household, selecting every moment. Hindoos do hurry themselves in anything they but the monkey has lots of time to wait, and has patience, and in the afternoon, after the crowd has gathered, the dog has had his morsel, and the dromedary are all satisfied, the poor fragments of the meal are thrown out on the ground for the "bunder-loose" (the monkey people), and it is soon discussed, mother feeding the baby before she herself.

When every house has thus in turn been visited, and no chance of further door relief remains, the monkeys fly to the well. The women are all again, drawing the water for the day, and the monkeys sit and wait, the ones in front, sententious and serious, the youngsters rolling about in the behind them, till at last some of the creatures wailing, and "in the name of Ram" spills a lot of water in the hollow of the ground, and the monkeys come round it in a circle, and down and drink, with their tails all up over their backs like notes of interrogation. There is no contention or rivalry, and forward child gets box on the ears perhaps, but each one, as it has finished its thirst, steps quietly out of the circle, and wipes its mouth. The day fairly commenced, they go off to see a luck may bring them.

The grain dealer's shop tempts them to enter, but the experience of previous attempts makes them hopeless; for the day, with all his years, is very nimble on his legs, and an astonishing good shot with a stick. The monkeys merely utter their salaams to him, and pass on to the fields. If the corn is ripe, they are soon content enough for the day; but if they go wandering about picking up the seeds, here an insect and there a berry, the sun gets too hot, and then they creep up into the dark shade or the hollow of a tree, and snooze through the afternoon. In the evening they are back in the village again to share in its contentment and entertainment.

At the convocation of the children, the mother and the father of the children, when on the farm, are up to the eyes in little duns of salt and corn, and from him in their turn exclaiming: "To the musician till they get sleepy, and by one they climb up into the tree."—Harper's Weekly.

While the number of men who become confrmed, habitual, professional prospectors is but small, few of the many who once yield to the fascination of the pursuit ever rid themselves entire of a yearning to indulge in the promise and delights with which both memory and expectation tempt their weakness. Bring me to the man who has once been a prospector, though in long years gone by, and who, perhaps, sacrificed his all—his hope in every direction—on the altar of a four foot stone monument, with a notice thereof of his having located such and such a claim, and even while his mouth contains the words denouncing himself as a fool and an idiot for wasting his substance on a dream, I shall with no greater charm than this piece of stone that hold in my hand bring a fire into his eyes and a ring into his voice that will prove the old Adam and the new to be one and the same man, unregenerate and unchangeable in heart. Bring to me such a man—bring even him who has "made his millions" and has become a fat and indolent owner of hotels and theaters, and fetch them both to me, for I will give them to the mercurial of this camp as to night, and doubt not that to-morrow will see pathetic success and lean failure nosing around the hole in yonder hill peering through magnifying glasses, talking of dips and strikes, walls and gullies, shafts and drifts, as if there were but no matter that was not vanity in the wide world, and that matter prospecting. Very likely we shall have old Bullion as well as the new. Quartz down in the holes, the one leading to drill and the other swinging a hammer, just to show how they used to do it.

There are men who prospect by proxy, giving "grub stakes" to needy members of the craft of prospectors and sharing in the results of discoveries. Such men know none of the real pleasures of the occupation. Even if the luv prove a fortunate one, and the quarry be the fattest of bucks, those men can but gorge themselves from the saddle or haunch and have no part in the more delicious, the flavor of the long posterous pursuit, the careful following of the trail, the intuition as the game comes in sight, the thrills of nervous doubts whether, after all, the true game be there and not a mere shadow, and the supreme final moment when the hunter stands a victor over the object of his chase, victorious through his own craftsmanship and endurance. The men who do the actual work and feel the sensible roughness of prospectors' lives, know the keenest enjoyment from the calling—know the true nature of the camp life, the contact with nature in some of its most curious and occasionally most beautiful moods, from the entrancing uncertainty and the spice of adventure that goes with an open air mountain existence. The pleasures of the sportsman, the man of science, the speculator, the poet, the inventor, the traveler, and of him who exerts his muscle and nerve in some agreeable industry are all borne in upon the prospector according to his fancied needs. For the reception of such enjoyments, of course, not one in a hundred of the men who prospect with hands at prospecting ever think of these things, but none the less, rather the more, do they feel them.

It is a strange motley procession that year after year comes up from the eastward to the mountains to increase the number of present and past prospectors. Representatives of nearly every industry of this country are to be found in the ranks; some who have failed in the pursuit of their choice, or in a variety of circumstances ordered them, and who have no other lucky stroke to retrieve their fortunes; others, restless spirits, with a craving for adventure and excitement; others with a sense, blind belief that the roads in the West are paved with gold and silver, to be had by anybody who will take the trouble of picking it up. I once came across two Baltimore boys—almost men in years—who were provided with a bunch of the small sacks in which the smoke of tobacco is retailed, the contents of which they were to put in the Baltimorean tobaccoist, and intended to hold the gold dust which the lads were to accumulate—out of the irrigation ditches of Denver, I suppose. I remember now that one of those young men had also a very minute and useless pistol, and when I asked him why he brought that thing with him he answered that he had expected to fight Indians. And from the Mississippi, appearing farmers from the Missouri River, in the east of the main stream, who approach the mountains with an impenetrable belief that all they have to do is sink a hole on the first hill which they may encounter in order to uncover a vein of pure precious metal, the presumption of people such as these, who could not tell limestone from granite or a piece of Philadelphia brick from ether, is simply superb. Then there is the man with a "divining rod," who believes in spiritualism—whatever it may be—and who, in the number of his movements of his whetstone, the undulating persons who think it possible that there may, after all, be something in the "divining rod's" power is far from inconsiderable, although not many are willing to avow as much openly and frankly. Individuals, who in coming to a mining country had no intention of engaging in the disturbance of the earth's hidden treasures, who indeed had vowed that they could not be so easily won to the pursuit of progress, are likely to be found there for long as thoroughly seized of the mania for prospecting as any. Let a "strike" be made in their neighborhood, and away to the winds go vows and resolutions, and the fever has clutched a victim with a grasp that will never volently be relaxed. As for the older settlers in these parts, especially in the rural districts, you will scarcely find a man who was not once in the life of an occasional prospector. Each of them has his tunnel or shaft in some hill-side, and on time to time does more or less work with his "mine." But I believe that the chief interest, which binds these older men to their "claims" is that they find something therein to talk about and thereby to revive memories of bygone days when their whole time and attention was absorbed in the joyful calling of a prospector.—Cor. N. Y. Times.

"—Mary Jane," said Mary Jane. "What?"

"—Mary Jane," said Dickey. "What is the difference between an affectionate wife and a wife that isn't affectionate?"

"—Why," said Mary Jane, "one loves him, and the other doesn't a nunny."

"—What a fool!" said Dickey; "that isn't the answer. The difference is this: One hugher husband, and the other husbands her hugs." "Don't wish you had a husband, Dickey?"

ASSEMBLY CONVENTION.

SECOND DISTRICT.

The regular convention for nominating a member of assembly for the second district, will be held at the common council room, in this city, on Saturday afternoon, October 23d, at 2 o'clock.

S. B. SMITH, J. W. BATES, F. KIMBALL, N. E. BENNETT, W. H. NOYES, ELIAS VARD, Committee.

Janesville, Oct. 20th, 1882.

Articles.

—Brigg's operatic minstrels have arrived in the city and are quartered at the Myers house.

—Mr. Henry Rogers new residence at the corner of Wisconsin and North Second streets, is rapidly approaching completion.

—Mr. Alfred Dewey has nearly completed his new residence at the intersection of Harmony street with Milton avenue, and will soon move into the same.

—Mr. J. H. Kinney, of this city, has been appointed collecting agent of the McDonald manufacturing company of Fond du Lac. A good position and a good man to fill it.

—We hear that the Rev. Grem C. Harrison, who was for some time the pastor of the colored M. E. church in city, and who was sent from here to the insane asylum at Madison, died in that institution recently.

—Mrs. Fixen, of Minnesota, delivered a prohibition lecture to a large audience at Court Street church last evening. She is a good speaker, and there is just enough of the Norwegian (?) dialect in her speech to make her delivery quite interesting.

—The boards of registry of the several wards, will hold their final meeting and commencing to-morrow, the first and fourth ward boards will remain in session two days, the other wards one day each. All voters should make it their duty to see that their names are upon the register. This must be done in person; it cannot be done by proxy.

—Captain Alex. Buchholz, with his little steamboat, went up the river yesterday with a party of a dozen or more shoe factory employees, for the purpose of taking the fish out of the river at the Ford.

The captain succeeded in hauling out a four ounce black bass, while another member of the party claims he had a bite. They all came home in the evening with empty baskets.

—Mrs. Giles Fisher died at her home on South Main street, on Sunday morning, and was buried this afternoon. The funeral services took place at the late home of the deceased, the Rev. Mr. Davies, of the Congregational church, officiating. Mrs. Fisher had been sick about eight weeks, being first taken by typhoid fever. The deceased had been living in the city about eight years, and was deeply respected by a large acquaintance. A husband mourns her death, beside a large family of children.

—The funeral of the late Mrs. Palmer, was largely attended at the family residence on Milton avenue yesterday afternoon. Rev. O. A. Carus officiated, and a quartette consisting of Mrs. J. W. St. John, Mrs. C. B. Conrad and Messrs. Clarence L. Clark and W. S. Follenbee, rendered some very appropriate music. The floral tributes were liberal and very beautiful. The pall bearers were Messrs. Jerome Howland, S. B. Keyton, A. J. Glass, B. R. Hill, Wm Ross. The remains were laid at rest in Oakhill.

Tobacco Notes.

Sales of seed leaf tobacco reported by J. S. Gans' Son & Co., tobacco brokers, No. 131 Water street, New York, expressly for the Janesville Gazette, for the week ending October 23, 1882:

1,500 cases, crop of 1881, white flint 14 to 15 cents.

641 cases, crop of 1881, New England 14 to 15 cents.

400 cases, crop of 1881, Pennsylvania, 14 to 15 cents.

230 cases, crop of 1881, Pennsylvania, 12 to 20 cents.

100 cases, crop of 1881, Ohio, 54 cents.

118 cases, crop of 1882, Ohio, 44 to 10 cents.

130 cases, crop of 1881, Wisconsin, Havana, 10 to 10 cents.

Total cases, 2,918.

Personal.

—Mr. Fred Prentice returned from Chicago this afternoon.

—Congressman Williams will speak at Emerald Grove on Tuesday evening.

—Mr. Royal Wood and wife leave, to-day, for California, where they will remain all winter.

—Mr. W. B. Jerome, of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe road, spent Sunday at his home in this city.

—The Hon. Neil Dow, of Maine, who will speak at the Myers opera house this evening, is a guest of the Hon. William A. Lawrence.

—Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Conger, of Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett, of La Crosse, arrived here on receipt of the news of the death of Judge Conger. Mrs. Bartlett is a sister, and Mr. Sydney Conger a nephew of the deceased.

—Mr. Frank Pusterbach, was in the city yesterday, and assisted choir of St. Patrick's church in singing, at the late mass. Frank was once a member of that church choir. He has a fine voice, and in sacred music, especially, it has an inspiring effect.

Zorosa.—Zorosa was introduced in America two years ago. Large quantities have been used for Dyspepsia, and as a panacea for the Liver, and the manufacturers have yet to hear of a single case of Dyspepsia or Biliousness, which Zorosa was used as directed, in which it was not more than satisfactory. Many write that it is a wonderful remedy. We can show where as high as 40 pounds were gained by its use in breaking up chronic Biliousness and Dyspepsia. Its friends increase very fast and all who use as directed are surprised and gratified. Ask Prentice & Benson.

HARD CIDER.

It Causes the Death of Spencer Turner, in the Town of Plymouth.

The Coroner's Inquest.

On Sunday morning Constable Phillip Gundell came to the city, and brought the news that a man by the name of Spencer Turner, living with his mother about three miles southwest of Hanover, in the town of Plymouth, had been dangerously burned while on a drunken spree with one Charles A. Stuart, and that the appearance of the victim warranted the arrest of Stuart on a charge of assault and battery, which was immediately carried in to effect, and Stuart was brought to this city and lodged in the city jail. Later in the day the news of the death of Turner was brought to the city, and the body of the deceased showing unmistakable evidences of foul treatment, it was decided by the district attorney to hold an inquest, this forenoon. Accordingly the prisoner was taken to the scene of the affray this morning, and a representative of the Gazette was dispatched thither to ascertain the facts in the case.

On arriving at Hanover there seemed to be but one opinion among the people, and that was that Turner had been foully dealt with, and that Stuart was guilty of the crime of murder.

It seems that Stuart has been on a drunken debauch for some days, and according to his own evidence at the inquest to-day, he and Turner were drunk, on Saturday and Sunday night, and had made way with two or more gallons of hard cider and a pint of whisky in the short space of a few hours. They were together at Turner's mother's, Saturday afternoon, visited several of the neighbors in a buggy, and finally brought up at Stuart's home. Stuart's mother, from fear of the drunken condition of the boys, left the house, took their buggy and horse and drove to one of the neighbors, but came back early in the evening and concealed herself behind a fence across the road from the house. Here she watched the actions from within. She testified that the boys were staggering drunk, and that she heard a noise in the house, like chairs being kicked around, or somebody going up and down stairs. She did not attempt to enter the house until she saw the blaze.

Charles Stuart, who is about twenty years of age, testified as to what happened in the house; that he and Turner were in the parlor; he was playing on the organ and Turner was singing; afterwards coming out of the parlor to the sitting room, the lamp went out as the pantry door was opened. Stuart told Turner to let the lamp alone until morning; that his sister Lully would then fill it, and he (Stuart) then went out into the kitchen and out into the back yard when he looked back through a window and discovered a blaze in the sitting room. He immediately rushed into the room, and upon asking Turner if he was much hurt replied no, but I am badly burnt. He then put out the fire which was hanging to him in coils, and dragged him out into the back yard. Some of the neighbors had arrived by this time, and Turner was taken back into the house.

This, in brief, are the facts in the case. The man Turner was badly burned on the head and left side. His clothing was also badly burned and torn on the same side, while the back of his coat and shirt were well saturated with blood, and his pants was a total wreck. On the left side of the dead man's head was a long, deep gash, commencing at the left temple, and following an irregular line above the left ear along the base of the skull to the back of the neck. The coroner's inquest closed at 1 o'clock, and our reporter was obliged to make haste for his return. The neighbors who were first on the scene, found an old pump handle, which was taken care of, and will be used as evidence of foul play. The wound on the head was the only mark of violence exhibited to the jury, but at the time our reporter left a post mortem examination was being held by Dr. Henry Palmer, of this city, and Dr. Johnson, of Orlenville. There are many rumors afloat in the neighborhood, all agreeing that Stuart is guilty, or that he caused the death of Turner.

These rumors will all be brought up before the inquest is closed.

Charles A. Stuart is a son of A. C. Stuart, who has been a resident of the town of Plymouth about 35 years, and this son Charles is not known to the criminal records of Rock county, but he is not considered as a vicious character by any means, and no one would, by his appearance, take him for a man that would commit such a crime.

Spencer Turner, the deceased, was about 35 years old, and is a cousin of young Stuart. They have been up together, before the criminal courts charged with petty offenses, but nothing very serious.

The jury was ordered by Justice J. W. Brown, of Hanover, and the following gentlemen are considering the case: H. W. Brown, Charles Demrow, D. Blackburn, Stephen Sildore, Charles Brohart, Charles Luckfield.

It was the general opinion when our reporter left, that the finding of the jury would warrant the holding of Stuart on the charge of murder.

Turner died at two o'clock on Sunday afternoon.

GENERAL BRAGG.

He Came to Janesville and Delivered a Two Hours Address Favoring Free Trade.

The independent meeting at Leppin's hall, on Saturday evening, drew a full house, many of the audience being straight out republicans, who went to hear what the "great soldier, orator and statesman," had to say touching the independent movement in the First district. In this they were greatly disappointed. The general spoke for two hours, commencing his remarks by alluding to the congressional candidates as gentlemen of ability, for whom he had great personal regard. The only difference between them was, one was a democrat and the other was a republican; and the man being, in his mind equal, he would speak for the election of the democrat, because he was heartily sick of the reckless manner in which the republicans conducted the affairs of the government, and wanted a change. After alluding at some length to the strong ties which bind men to their parties, and urging republicans to break loose from the strong hand of bossism, and join the independent democratic platform and elect an independent to congress, he dropped all other issues of the campaign in this district, and devoted the remainder of his time to the tariff question. The republican candidate was in favor of protection, therefore he, as a democrat and independent, was not. No sooner had the general commenced his remarks on this point, than the great crowd commenced to retire from the hall, and even some of the independent republicans who took seats on the stage with the speaker, went away, dissatisfied. It was said by some that if the speaker had continued for half an hour longer, the hall would have been entirely deserted.

The speech was not adapted to its audience, and the strong leaders of the opposition say it was immaterial to this case. It was evident that the democrats did not get their money's worth, if in fact, they did not lose personally by the venture. At the end, the meeting quietly broke up, without cheers, and the free trade sentiments dampened all the enthusiasm of the democrats and what few independent voters were left in the hall. One thing is certain, not many republicans were convinced by this speech, that they had been voting the wrong ticket, and that now was an opportunity to make a change—not many.

Physical Suffering.

No one can realize, except by personal experience, the anguish of mind and body endured by sufferers from dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, and other diseases of the stomach. Burdock Blood Bitters are a positive cure for this distress of all diseases. Price $1.00. Sold by Palmer & Stevens and Sherer & Co.

The Minister's To-Night.

The Boston operatic minstrels will appear at Lappin's music hall to-night. They come to Janesville well recommended, and we have no doubt they will be well patronized. The St. Catherine Evening Journal speaks of them as follows: "Mr. W. B. Brigg's operatic minstrels opened at the Academy of Music Monday night, and gave a very excellent entertainment. The organization is evidently new and the members have hardly got used enough to each other to work with that smoothness and ease which they will soon acquire. The company presents a very fine programme of musical novelties, and is especially strong where many minstrel companies are, notably weak—in its vocalization, having a very fine balanced quartette. There are some very good clowns and banjo players and a good stump orator, together with many excellent features in song and dance. A good orchestra is not the least attractive feature of the company. The organization is worthy of patronage."

A Singular Victory.

The value of electricity as a remedial agent has gained a signal victory over prejudice. Thomas Edison's Oran stands foremost in this class of compounds. Testimonials from all parts tell of the wonderful cures of rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, and sores, etc., effected by its agency. Sold by Palmer & Stevens and Sherer & Co.

The Weather.

The thermometer at 7 o'clock this morning registered 42 degrees above zero, and at 1 p. m. at 55 degrees.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23. 1 a. m.—The following are the indications for to-day:

Lake Region.—Generally fair weather, northwest to southwest winds; in lower lake region, higher barometer and slight fall in temperature.

Dyspepsia and Nervous people, "out of sorts," Colman's Liquid Bile will cure. Ask for Colman's, take no other. Of druggists generally.
